

Stats for Biologists

11/5, 11/7 & 11/8, 1:30-3:30, first floor classroom

Got lots of numbers? Not quite sure what to do with them? Want to learn how to better take advantage of the power of statistics?

BARC is offering "Statistics for Biologists" during the week of November 5 in the new first floor classroom. The class will include theory and methods in biostatistics, emphasizing common themes in biomedical research.

Approximately half of each session will be devoted to lecture-style instruction, followed by "hands-on" experience using Excel and/or the R statistics program.

Laptop computers will be available for use during the class sessions. The class has limited space, so be sure to reserve your spot soon!

If you would like to sign up, email barc-courses@wi.mit.edu.

brought to you by...